To Whom it may concern

Organic waste transfer stations is a good idea itself. But It's really not a thoughtful idea to be built at such close to the residential area.

Organic waste transfer stations can be harmful smoke and pollution affect the health, well-being and way of life of local residents. And also can create unpleasant odors and attract rats, cockroaches, pests and rodents. It will effect to local business value and living environment.

As local residents, we are deeply worried and strongly opposed to the government's plan. I hope the government can listen to the residents!

Yours Sincerely
